moted to train dispatcher on that road in 1895, being advanced to train master in 1905 and continued in such capacity until August 1, 1910, when he entered the service of the Kansas City Southern, leaving that service to take a position with the Indiana State Railroad Commission January 1, 1911. On August 5, 1912, he again entered railroad service, accepting a post with the Baltimore and Ohio as supervisor of transportation, reporting to the superintendent of that branch of the operating department, January 1, 1913, he became assistant superintendent at Keyser.

Mr. Cahill, who assumes Mr. Scott's duties at Keyser, was born November 19, 1872, and entered railway service in November, 1887, as a telegraph operator at Lexington, O., on the New Castle division of the Baltimore and Ohio. In October, 1892, he was advanced to train dispatcher at Akron, and in February, 1905, became division operator at Akron. He was promoted to train master of the Pittsburgh division on May 1, 1910, and to assistant superintendent of the same division May 1, 1912. In July of the same year he was advanced to superintendent of the Newark division, resigning later to accept a similar position with the Lackawanna railroad at Buffalo, N. Y., from whence he returns to the Baltimore and Ohio.

COMEDIAN

Who Played at Robinson Grand Dies in Baltimore Hospital.

The many patrons of the Robinson Grand theater, who saw the performance of "Excuse Me" which was played there several weeks ago and enjoyed many laughs furnished by little Jimmy Wellington, will learn with deep regret of the death of Phil Staudt, who played the role of Jimmy Wellington here. He died recently in the Maryland hotel while he was playing an engagement at one of the Baltimore theaters. Heart failure was the cause of his death.
